Objective: By focusing on the different priorities and strategies for European research funding among the partner universities, we will offer a clear overview and deep understanding of the different institutional approaches within the alliance's partners regarding the priority and strategy, adopted by each partner, toward European funding. By identifying each partner strongholds in terms of European funding, we will be able to learn from each other and lay foundations for future successful collaboration within the alliance, by building a bridge between all 9 partners for the future, and open up new and flexible horizons for knowledge exchange within the FORTHEM Alliance.

Content:

This workshop will provide us a strong expertise in the different approaches from the FORTHEM partners, and will allow us to identify each partner's strength. In this workshop, we will be able to establish an exchange of best practices between the various actors among the FORTHEM Alliance, and lay the foundations for future collaborations. By offering a clear overview of each partner university's strategy and priority, we hope to reduce site specific inequalities overtime, and work toward creating better support structures for institutions and researchers of the alliance to get actively engaged in European projects. In this workshop, we will gain a better understanding of the universities' overall participation and success rate into EU projects, as well as the administrative support offered to researchers in each partner university.

Main target groups:

Researchers, early career academics, research support staff and administrative staff.
